"Thinking Beyond Conflict"

Dr. Paul Arthur

D.Litt., from the National University of Ireland Currently Visiting Distinguished Professor and Interim Director of Peace Studies,
Chapman University

Dr. Arthur has done extensive work as an author, international lecturer and advisor in the area of peace and conflict resolution.

A distinguished historian has described the chief task of public intellectuals in the present century as one of not imagining better worlds 'but rather to think of how to prevent worse ones'. The purpose of this talk is to acknowledge the gravity of the challenge but not to succumb to pessimism. The talk will be illustrated with some examples of the speaker's experience of working on a seemingly intractable conflict that in the end proved to be more malleable.
