WATER WISDOM with Leigh Adams

Practical, cross-cultural approaches to harvesting, utilizing and conserving water.

We are currently faced with decisions we must make regarding water. We are challenged by the ongoing drought, radically depleted groundwater, and our own cultural biases. Perhaps a look at how water is used in other cultures may offer some valuable clues to improving our local systems and overcoming these persistent, contemporary difficulties with WATER.

Leigh Adams, the LA County Arboretum's Artist-in-Residence, teacher, and garden designer, is currently curating and developing The Crescent Farm - A Living Demonstration of Water Conservation and Sustainable Landscapes at the Los Angeles County Arboretum and Botanic Gardens. Leigh will present a storyteller's approach to thinking about, teaching, harvesting and conserving water.

You will also have an opportunity to see some unique approaches taking place in our own neighborhoods.
